Losses to Japanese at Port Arthur

THIRTY THOUSAND SLAIN BY RUSSIAN MINES

In Unsuccessful Attempt to Take Port from Landside.

MEAGER DETAILS ARE RECEIVED.

A Shanghai Correspondent Places the Number of Japs Slain at 28,000 Men.

TOKIO, JULY 13.—(BULLETIN.)—THE TIEN SIEN CORRESPONDENT OF THE EVENING STAR TO DAY REPORTS THAT THOUSANDS OF JAPANESE HAVE BEEN KILLED IN AN UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT TO TAKE PORT ARTHUR FROM THE LAND SIDE.

St. Petersburg, July 13.—(Bulletin.)—The Russian general staff officially states that Viceroy Alexieff has been informed from Japanese sources that the Japanese attack on the Port Arthur positions on the night of July 10 were repulsed with enormous losses. It is stated that the casualties on the Japanese side reached 30,000.

A STARTLING RUMOR.
London, July 13.—Your correspondent at St. Petersburg telegraphs a sensational rumor to the effect that the Japanese, after their terrible repulse on Monday night, attacked the Port Arthur positions with new forces and succeeded in taking them. Your correspondent concludes his message: "This rumor seems to me incredible."

St. Petersburg, July 13.—A dispatch from a Russian correspondent at Mukden dated July 12 says:
"According to intelligence received here the Japanese last night attacked positions near Port Arthur and were repulsed with enormous losses, not less than 30,000 being killed or wounded by our mines."

SHANGHAI SAYS 28,000.
London, July 13.—The Morning Post's Shanghai correspondent says that the Japanese casualties by land mines at Port Arthur Sunday night are reported to have been 25,000, but none of the many other special war dispatches mention a Japanese disaster at Port Arthur.

SICKNESS OF TROOPS.
St. Petersburg, July 13.—An official statement of the number of sick and wounded belonging to the Manchurian army shows a great increase in sickness after a few days' rain and also a large proportion of sick and wounded officers compared with men. The figures are according to the latest strength of the army. Before the rains, to June 26, the total was—officers 71 and men 39 per thousand, of whom wounded officers numbered 10 and men 6 per thousand; suffering from contagious diseases, 2 per thousand, of whom one-half were suffering from dysentery and one-tenth from typhus. There was one case of plague and not a single case of smallpox. After the rains, July 9, the figures were—officers, 94 per thousand, men 46, of whom the wounded officers numbered 29 per thousand and the men 9 per thousand. Contagious diseases had risen to 9 per thousand, affecting in equal proportion dysentery and typhus and introducing scurvy and smallpox, of which there were three cases, and bring up the plague to seven cases. Twenty-two cases of horse and cattle plague were also reported.

EX-SENATOR HENRY G. DAVIS.

Issues a Statement at Lincoln

SAYING HE WILL SUPPORT PARKER AND DAVIS

On the Living Issues, but He Criticises Convention

ON THE ISSUES THAT ARE DEAD

And Says Things Both Caustic and Complimentary—The Nebraskan's Statement Follows.

Lincoln, Neb., July 13.—W. J. Bryan gives out the following statement:
"I shall vote for Parker and Davis, the nominees of the Democratic national convention, and shall do so for the following reasons:
"First—Because the Democratic ticket stands for opposition to imperialism, while the Republican ticket stands for imperialistic policy. On this question, which was the paramount issue in 1900, and which must remain an important issue so long as an attempt is made to hold colonies under the American flag—on this issue, the convention was unanimous. The platform emphatic and I have no doubt that the candidate will carry out the platform.
"Second—Mr. Roosevelt is injecting the race issue into American politics and this issue, if it becomes national, will make it impossible to consider economic questions that demand solution. The election of the Democratic ticket will put a quietus upon this attempt and permit the race question to work itself out without the bitterness which Mr. Roosevelt's conduct has engendered.
"Third—Mr. Roosevelt stands for the spirit of war. His friends present him as a man of blood and iron. He believes in strenuousness and inculcates a love for warlike things. The Democratic ticket stands for peace, for reason and for arbitration, rather than for force, conquest and bluster.
"Fourth—The Democratic platform declares in favor of the reduction of the standing army, and as this plank was unanimously adopted, there is reason to believe that a Democratic success on this subject would bring some advantage to the people.

"For these reasons, I feel justified in supporting the ticket, but I shall not misrepresent the situation or appeal for votes for the ticket upon false grounds.
"A Democratic victory will mean very little, if any, progress on economic questions so long as the party is under the control of the Wall street element.
"On the money question Mr. Parker is as thoroughly committed to the side of the financiers as Mr. Roosevelt. If he does not go as far as the Republicans would, in retiring silver dollars, in establishing branch banks, in enlarging the powers of the national banks, and in the substitution of an asset currency for the present currency, it will be because he is restrained by the Democrats in the house and senate. Nothing good can be expected of him on the money question.
"On the trust question the Democratic platform is very much better than the Republican platform, but the nomination of Judge Parker virtually nullifies the anti-trust plank. Unless, in his letter of acceptance he commits himself to attempt anti-trust legislation, we need not expect him to pursue a different course from that pursued by Roosevelt.
"So far as the labor questions are concerned, we must await Judge Parker's letter before we shall know whether the laboring man has anything to expect from his election. The labor plank, as prepared by Judge Parker's friends on the sub-committee, was a straddling, meaningless plank. In the full committee planks were

PARKER

Will Deliver a Half Dozen Speeches in the Campaign.

Esopus, July 13.—Practically all of the intervening time until election will be spent by Judge Parker at Esopus. Once or twice he will confer with the party leaders in New York and about as often with D. B. Hill at Albany. Toward the last he will visit a very few of the larger cities of the country when the field is raging hottest, to make no more than half a dozen speeches but there will be no "swing around the circle, nor any of the flamboyant oratory that characterized the last two Democratic campaigns. Conservatism will be the predominant note. Grover Cleveland will probably deliver one address but that Bryan will enter into the Parker end of the presidential effort is extremely doubtful.

STORM

Sweeps Over Suburb of Manila

KILLING 200 PEOPLE AND DOING GREAT DAMAGE

Property Loss is Given at Two Million Dollars.

CITY'S WATER SUPPLY CUT OFF.

People Will Have to Resort to the Creeks and Rivers, Many Being Unfit for Use.

Manila, July 13.—(Bulletin.)—Two hundred lives have been lost and $2,000,000 worth of property destroyed by a cloudburst which swept San Juan Del Monte.
The climax came at the end of 24 hours' heavy rain, which reached the unprecedented amount of seventeen inches. In San Juan Del Monte boats are the only methods of communication and all low lying districts are flooded, the people seeking safety on the hills.
Chicago, July 13.—M. V. Joannin, one of the Philippine commission to the World's Fair, now in Chicago, stated that the members of the commission are appalled by the startling intelligence from Manila today.
"The effect," said he, "in Manila, not only on account of the serious death loss, but on account of the hardships it will entail on the city will be most heartrending.
"The water supply will be entirely cut off and the people will be compelled to resort to creeks and rivers, many of which are unfit for use."
San Juan Del Monte is a suburb of Manila and is situated about five miles to the northeast.

GOLDEN RULE

Mayer of Toledo, Samuel M. Jones, Died Tuesday Evening—Remains Lie in State Thursday.

Toledo, July 13.—Today Toledo is in mourning early for Mayor Jones. Public places, business places and many residences are draped. In his death, political animosities have been forgotten and all parties and creeds are uniting to do him honor. The funeral service will be held at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon.

gotten and all parties and creeds are uniting to do him honor. The funeral service will be held at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Toledo, O., July 13.—Samuel M. Jones, the Golden Rule mayor, died at his home Tuesday evening at 5:07 o'clock as the result of a complication of diseases. The immediate cause of his death was an abscess on his lungs. When this abscess broke the mayor was not strong enough to throw off the poison from his system and death resulted. The mayor had suffered for years from asthma and this was the primary cause of his fatal illness.

The death of Mayor Jones has caused the greatest sorrow all over the city. Although many did not believe in his ideas on sociological problems, everybody loved and respected him. His one great stronghold with the people of Toledo was his honesty. The mayor was taken ill two weeks ago last Thursday and for the last 48 hours previous to his death, he was in a comatose condition. All the members of his family were at his bedside at the time of his death. He leaves a widow and three sons, Percy, Paul and Mason Jones. He will be succeeded as mayor by Robert Rinch, president of the council.

The remains of Mayor Jones will lie in state at Memorial hall Thursday and Friday until noon and the funeral services will be held at the residence on Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

The remains will rest on the veranda and the addresses will be made from the veranda. The lawns will be open to all. The pallbearers will be selected from his employees.

FAMINE

In Meat Feared in Big Cities

BIG STRIKE BEGUN TUESDAY IS GROWING

Price of Meat Advanced Today in the Cities.

BATTLE OVER THE WAGE SCALE.

This Morning Thirty-five Hundred Men in New York Joined the Strikers...
—Nine Cities Affected.

The most widespread industrial dispute since the celebrated American Railway Union strike in 1894 is now on. Nine big cities are affected and a meat famine is feared. Over 50,000 men are now on a strike and as many more may be affected by the strike. The daily loss in wages is over $50,000 and the loss in business to packers is estimated at $1,000,000 daily. The strike leaders say they are willing to remain idle six months rather than permit one of their number to accept a reduction in wages. According to the meat packers, there will be no compromise.

New York, July 13.—Thirty-five hundred butchers, carvers, slaughterers, drivers, helpers and laborers in this city joined in the great meat strike today. The order to go out came to the men late yesterday afternoon and the men immediately voted to obey it.

Armour & Co. and Schwarzhild & Sulzberger, called on the police this morning for protection. They said the strikers were congregated near their plants and police were wanted in the event of trouble.

The retail butchers lost no time in taking advantage of the strike. Prices have been raised one and two cents all along the line and will go higher. A meat famine is predicted should the strike run over two or three days.

PEACEFUL AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, July 13.—Peaceful was the condition of affairs in the stock yards territory during the early hours of this morning and up to noon. Knots of strikers gathered here and there, while picket lines were placed to keep watch on any contemplated movement on the part of the packers to bring to the plants such non-union help as they had been able to secure during the night. Eighty negroes were smuggled into the yards under the cover of darkness, it was reported. They were used in placing the beef slaughtered Tuesday in the cooling rooms. Five hundred policemen remained within call should necessity require their presence to disperse unruly assemblages. The only conflict this morning rose when two wagon loads of mattresses, intended for the stock yards, were attacked by the strikers. One wagon escaped, but the other was overturned. The strikers tried to set fire to the mattresses, but the arrival of the police foiled them. Michael Reidy, Thomas Howard and Michael Flynn were arrested.

QUIET AT KANSAS CITY.

Kansas City, July 13.—There were no desertions from the packing house strikers' ranks this morning, nor did the packers hire any laborers. There is no work for the latter, as their duties depend upon the activity of the killing gangs. The packing house district was comparatively deserted this morning when the 7 o'clock whistles blew. No extra police are on duty. The saloons around the plants are empty. Armour had about 1,200 cattle and hogs on hand and 500 sheep and announced his intention of slaughtering.

THE RAILWAYS

RUMORED ST. PAUL SECURES THE WISCONSIN CENTRAL.

Heaviest Rails Ever Used Laid by the Pennsylvania—Day's Local Railway Personal Notes.

St. Paul, July 13.—Rumors of the sale of the Wisconsin Central to the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul are credited as true by many officials who are familiar with the Northwestern situation. It is declared that an official statement will be forthcoming within 60 days.

Milwaukee Wis., July 13.—Concerning rumors current in St. Paul as to the sale of the Wisconsin Central lines to the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway company a high official of the Wisconsin Central made the statement that the rumor was unfounded. He also said:

"Any one who has read the so-called 'merger decision' will understand how impossible it is for a competing line to control the Wisconsin Central."

Heaviest Ever Used.

The Pennsylvania railroad has recently completed three tracks that are laid with the heaviest rails ever used by any railroad company. The tracks are on the Delaware freight line, and the rails weigh 142 pounds to the yard, which is 17 pounds heavier to the yard than any rail ever before used.

The rails are ballasted in concrete, and nine-inch girders are used to bind them. The curves and spurs are laid with the same weight rails.

It is believed the rails will wear for 25 years without repairs.

It took about three months to complete the work of placing the rails, and the cost was about $1,000,000. If these rails wear much longer than the 100-pound rails on the main line the heavier rail will likely be adopted at some future time.

Section Man Injured.

An Hungarian employed by the Baltimore and Ohio company was struck by a passenger train Tuesday afternoon.

The man was working at the tracks between Fifth and Sixth streets, when the train came along and struck him, hurling him into the air. He was picked up by several fellow workmen, and Bowers & Bradley's ambulance removed him to the City hospital. The man is not fatally injured. His injuries are about the legs. His knees are badly crushed.

Keep Cars Clean.

Officials of the Pennsylvania system have issued orders to passenger train crews and employees to be more careful regarding the cleanliness and general condition of the cars.

B. & O. Back of It.

It is reported from Huntingdon, Pa., that a railroad has been surveyed from Mapleton, Huntingdon county, to Hancock, Md., through valuable mineral and timber tracts. It is thought the Baltimore and Ohio is back of the project.

A FIGHT OVER WAGES.

Chicago, July 13.—As a result of a disagreement, chiefly over wages for unskilled labor, one of the most extensive strikes in the history of the packing industry of the United States is on at Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Joseph, St. Louis, St. Paul, Sioux City, Fort Worth and other cities where large packing plants are located.

The unanimity of the strike was complete. More than 50,000 employees are directly involved. In Chicago alone 18,000 men are on a strike.

The effect of the strike upon the food supply of the country and the price of meats is being earnestly discussed, notwithstanding announcement was made that the packing houses, contrary to somewhat general expectation, will continue operations without any shutdown, employing whatever help may be obtainable.

How much alleviation in the furnishing of supplies to the public this course may afford is a matter of wide variation of opinion. The packers declare that hundreds of men who could not be provided with places have been applying daily for work.

The secrecy observed by the union men prevented the packers from stopping shipments of cattle. As a result the yards are well filled and train loads are arriving hourly.

The stock yards commission houses have wired cattle men to hold their stock until further notice.

The packers say there is fresh meat enough in Chicago to last about ten days.

The packers have refused decisively to pay the wage scale asked. They say the men refused their offer to arbitrate.

President Michael Donnelly, the strike leader, said: "We are not fighting for an increase of wages, but against a decrease."

"Our original demand was for a minimum of 20 cents an hour for laborers. This demand was amended after our second conference with the packers in June."

"We agreed to a scale of 18 1-2 cents an hour, except in Omaha and Sioux City, where the scale is 19 cents."

"The packers, on the other hand, refused to pay more than 17 1-2 cents an hour, and declined to sign any agreements at all, except with a small proportion of the workmen."

"The question of wages to skilled men was not discussed. To unskilled workmen the average wage was 18 1-2 cents, but when we asked that they be made the minimum wage, they cut it to 17 1-2 and 15 cents. Men could live on 15 cents if they got steady work, but in some plants have been able to make just thirteen hours a week at this scale. They couldn't live on it. No one could."

Weakness the Mother of Crime.

It was the duty of the writer at one time to examine a large number of the inmates of a penitentiary. After considerable observation and study he came to two conclusions. One was that bad associations had more to do than heredity in starting these men wrong. The other was that the predominant feature to be observed among the inmates was weakness rather than inherent evil. Subsequent observations of other criminals have confirmed both impressions.

The heads low in the frontal region, the receding chins, the sensuous, self indulgent mouths, the vacant or sullen look—all these were signs that he who would might read. Written all over these faces was indecision. On each of them was left the stamp of a mind without a serious purpose.

Nature abhors a weakling. The law of life everywhere is that the strong shall win. Among animals this is simply the strength of muscle. Among men it is transmuted into something higher—strength of will and of character.

If you would win your way, if you would live a decent, self respecting life, you must be a man; you must let your mind and not your body rule; you must be strong.

"And that was three years ago, wasn't it?" Miss Travers said. "It doesn't seem like it."

"No," he replied; "it seems—thirty."

"Thanks! Have I really aged so much since then?"

"I mean until I saw you it seemed thirty," he explained.

"Three years—it goes very quickly. You haven't changed much."

"I? I haven't changed at all."

She regarded him critically. "No, you haven't—in looks."

"I haven't in any way," he replied earnestly and with an undertone of intention in his voice. "And you—you are all I imagined."

"I imagined? Then I was not a reality three years ago. I was a mere figment of your brain. What do you mean?"

"I mean—why—that in all these years I have been imagining you—in all sorts of ways, you know."

"Oh! Sometimes as fair haired, I suppose, and sometimes as dark haired, sometimes with a hump and sometimes cross eyed."

"Nonsense!"

"Well, it's what you said, 'all sorts of ways,' and yet—do you remember the silly speech you made me when you went away?"

"Of course—only it wasn't silly. It was the frozen truth."

"It didn't seem very frozen then, but perhaps it does now, however, at this distance. You haven't answered my question yet, though. What was it you said?"

"Why—that—that's the use of my telling you over again if your memory is so good?"

"It's your memory that's in question, not mine. Confess you don't remember."

"But I do, of course. It was that I wouldn't forget," he said triumphantly.

Miss Travers dropped her eyes, raised them again for a brief fluttering moment and again dropped them with a pensive little smile.

"And you remember what it was I said to you then?" he asked impressively, leaning nearer and looking down at the bent head.

"You said—of course, you were just saying it—but you said you would remember every word I had said to you, every look of my eyes, every tone of my voice. You were quite sentimental that night."

"It was meant, every word of it. No man could forget. I know it now."

"Now? Didn't you know it then? What do you mean? You talk as though you were not the same man you were. Aren't you?"

"Well, every man changes, you know, every seven years. Scientific fact, I believe."

"But it hasn't been seven—only three."

"Oh, of course, not really change. I was joking. What I meant was that knowing you, having your image before me these years, has made a changed man of me—changed the whole course of my life," he said earnestly.

"Ah, and you have that photograph of me yet?"

"Of course. As if I wouldn't! It has never been out of my keeping since I stole it from—"

"I thought I gave it to you myself?" she said, with some surprise in her voice. "Have you forgotten how you begged it from me that night?"

"Of course I haven't forgotten," he replied heartily. "I know you gave it to me." But she was not listening. Her eyes were looking off into the distance beyond the dark glass of the conservatory.

"How beautiful the moonlight was on the water that night, and far off some boating party was singing! It was perfect!"

"Yes, perfect, at least to me."

"Do you remember when we glided into that stretch of lily pads and I lifted them dripping from the water, each drop like a diamond, and you said—"

"And I said I wished they were real so that I could give them to you," he said boldly.

"Did you? I thought it was that the drops would spoil my gown—the gown you admired so much."

"I did admire it. I have always seen you in that gown—and your face luminous in half shadow, the glint of your hair and your arms gleaming in the moonlight as you trailed your fingers in the water and made silvery ripples over the polished black mirror of the river."

He drew a long breath when he finished, as one who felt relieved.

"And it was as we neared home, wasn't it, that you told me that you wanted my picture?"

"Yes."

The corners of her mouth twitched a little. "What a splendid memory you have," she said, "a marvelous memory I call it. I wish I had one like it, though it's not what I would call accurate—if that's a sample—because, you see, you didn't ask me for my photograph that night. It was fall when you left, and it rained hard that afternoon, and we could not go out, but instead sat in the drawing room by the fire. Except for these little details, your recollection of what happened is wonderfully clear."

"But you said yourself—"

"Yes! I did. I just wanted to test you. Now I commence to doubt that you really still have my picture."

"I can show it to you."

"Are you certain it's not some other girl that you've mistaken for me? One is liable to mistake one person for another unless there's a special reason."

"No danger. There's not another girl in the world like you. I knew you the moment I saw you."

"Knew me?"

"Yes, across the ballroom."

"You had forgotten me, then?"

"I mean," he exclaimed slowly, like one who picks his way, "that I knew you—for the one girl I cared about."

"Oh-h! But was it at a ball we first met? I remember your telling me that three years ago, but I didn't think it was at a ball that that knowledge came to you. We met first—let's see—where was it?"

"At—at—it's idiotic, but for the life of me I can't remember for the moment. You were the important matter, all else—"

"It's hardly to be expected you should recollect," she said, compassionating his confusion. "It was at the Thorntons'."

"Of course, the Thorntons. I knew, but I couldn't think of the name. I remember Harry telling—"

"Harry? What Harry?"

"Er—Harry—Harry Thornton, of course."

"Oh, I never knew there was a brother. And he told you—"

"That he wanted me to meet you. He said, 'Phil, there's a'—"

"Why, I thought your name was Harry, but possibly that's changed in three years too. You used to be called Harry."

"A man may have two names, mayn't he?"

"It seems like it."

"I mean he may have more than one name. My name is Henry Philip Morton. All my old chums at college called me Phil."

"I might have understood—so stupid of me. So Mr. Thornton was a chum of yours at college?"

"Yes. Great friends we were."

"And that's how you came to know his sisters? Charming girls, weren't they?"

"Very, very charming, only I don't want to talk about them now. It's such a waste!"

"Why, have you quarreled?"

"No, not exactly."

"I thought perhaps you had, because Clara Thornton just passed, and neither of you spoke. I thought it curious."

"Yes. Of course I saw her—but it's rather a painful subject with me, and so if you don't mind let's get off it."

He looked off sadly, with a perturbed expression of countenance, due naturally to the pain he was feeling. There was silence for a moment or so, and then, hearing a little sobbing sound, he turned toward her.

She was bending over, her face buried in her hands. Like a flash it came over him what was the matter. She cared for the Horton and thought he cared for the Thornton girl.

"Margaret," he said, "Margaret, dear! It was nothing of that kind. I've never cared for any other woman but you—honestly."

Suddenly she lifted her face. There were traces of tears in her eyes.

"Oh, you fraud!" she cried. "You utter fraud!"

"I tell you—"

"You impostor! And you fancied I believed you?"

She drew a folded letter from the folds of her gown and found a place in it.

"Read that, Mr. Philip Morton, and then—"

Morton read the part she indicated.

"—And now the greatest news! Of course, you sly puss, I know of your flirtation with Harry Morton three years ago and that you gave him your photograph. Well, my dear, it seems that Harry's twin brother, Phil, saw the picture and rescued it when Harry was burning his scraps just before his marriage. Phil's kept it on his mantel for three years. Now he is going west, and what do you think? He proposes to stop off at Glendale and pretend he's Harry, stay at the Johnstons and pick up the ends of the affair with you right where he dropped them. Isn't that impudence? He has made a bet with Harry that he can do this, and he should be taught a lesson. He is exactly like Harry, as good looking and nicer, and I'm afraid—"

"You needn't read the rest," Miss Travers interrupted. "It's nothing to do with you." She turned a severe countenance toward the culprit. "It is a very nice trick to try and play on a girl, isn't it? So gentlemanly!"

"I suppose it wasn't fair, but—"

"But what? I want to be just."

"Well, it wasn't all a lie. The picture was all I said to me, and I have known ever since I met you that I cared for you, but I suppose you are awfully offended, and it's all over."

"It should be, shouldn't it, as a punishment? There ought to be some punishment surely."

"I shall lose my bet. Isn't that enough unless you'll let me win it?"

"Why, how can I?"

"The threads, you know. Let me pick 'em up where Harry dropped them. Then I'll win. You said you were going walking, weren't you, that day, and you couldn't because of the rain? I fancy tomorrow will be a fine day. The stars are very bright. Look up through the palms there. Mayn't I come tomorrow for you?"

"You don't deserve it, and I won't promise, but I shall be home at 3 and—Your waltz, Mr. Ackerly? Yes, so it is. Too bad you had such a hunt for me. I was just going in."

Miss Travers' hand fumbled for a moment adjusting her roses, then she moved away to the ballroom, leaving behind her on the floor a bud just opening to the world.

Morton picked it up and put it in his buttonhole.

"I am quite sure tomorrow will be a pleasant day," said he.

RHEUMATISM

JOINTS AND MUSCLES SWOLLEN AND STIFF

A disease so painful and far-reaching in its effects upon the human system as Rheumatism, must have a deep and well-laid foundation. It originates and develops in the blood, and, like other diseases of the blood, is frequently inherited. The poisonous acids with which the blood is charged circulate through the system, breaking down the health, irritating the nerves, settling in joints and muscles, and causing the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to Rheumatism. Unless the blood is purified, joints and muscles become coated with the acid matter and are rendered stiff and sore, and the nerves completely wrecked.

I had a severe attack of Rheumatism, and the doctors I had did me no good. They changed medicines every week, and nothing they prescribed seemed to help me. Finally I left off their medicine and began the use of S. S. S. My knee and elbow joints were so swollen and painful that I could not close them when opened. I was getting discouraged when I began S. S. S. but as I saw it was helping me, continued, and to-day am as sound, well man.

1365 Mt. Vernon Ave. R. H. CHAPMAN.

Rheumatism, being a constitutional blood disease, requires internal treatment. Liniments, plasters and such things as are applied outwardly, give only temporary relief. S. S. S. is the recognized greatest of all blood purifiers and tonics, and in no disease does it act so promptly and beneficially as Rheumatism, neutralizing the acids and restoring the blood to a pure, healthy condition and invigorating and toning up the nerves and all parts of the system. It is guaranteed strictly vegetable. Write us should you desire medical advice, which will cost you nothing.

Ideal Vacation Places

There is a splendid vacation country in southern Michigan and that adjoining it in northern Indiana—a country of many beautiful lakes, running streams clear as crystal, and deep woods.

Here are delightful places for fishing, boating, bathing, camping out and kindred pleasures, where you can enter into a simple, joyous summer life perfectly free from every-day conventionalities. The cost is very moderate. Board and rooms in farm houses and small summer hotels at rates averaging from $5 to $8 per week. There are also many furnished cottages for rent at reasonable rates. This entire region is reached by trains of and the D. T. & M. R. R., which it operates. To assist in selecting a vacation place, the following books will be sent for 5 cents in postage to cover part of mailing cost:

The Lake Shore

"The Ideal Vacation Land," containing 48 pages (8x10 inches) of beautiful views, from photographs made especially to illustrate some of the lake country, and "Quiet Summer Retreats," containing a list of summer boarding places, including summer hotels, farm houses, furnished cottages and camps, with rates, features of location and other information. NEWARK ELKS

HOLD A SOCIAL SESSION AND INITIATION.

Several Will Attend Convention at Cincinnati Next Week—A Boom for Mr. Fulton.

The meeting of Newark Lodge of Elks Tuesday evening was one of the best and most largely attended of the many good meetings the lodge has held. A number of visitors were present, among them being Brothers G. M. Sanderson, of Bakersville, Cal.; Arthur Havens, of Seattle, Wash.; Brother Vaughn, of Watertown, Wis.; J. S. Pierpont, of Marietta, and A. W. Ogle, of Cambridge.

After the transaction of the usual routine business a number of candidates were elected to membership and other applications were received.

The lodge is in a very flourishing condition and new accessions of desirable members are being constantly received. If the present rate of increase continues it will not be long until Newark lodge will be one of the banner lodges of the state.

Perhaps the chief interest of the evening centered in the initiation of a promising class of candidates into the rites and mysteries of Elkindom. The class consisted of Messrs. N. C. Sherburne, Earl W. Murphy, the "Apostles of Woodcraft," and Jacob Hunker, a well-known glass worker of the East End.

The work was performed in a very impressive manner by Exalted Ruler Ernest T. Johnson and the officers of the lodge, with Stanley R. Miller as exquire, and a special team consisting of George E. Graesser, Abe Thomas and Samuel Browne. The new paraphernalia was used for the first time.

At the conclusion of the initiation a delightful social session and banquet was enjoyed.

Mr. George E. Graesser filled the important post of toastmaster very satisfactorily.

Judge E. M. P. Brister was the first speaker, responding very appropriately to the "Eleven o'Clock Toast," in which he made special reference to the recent death of Grand Exalted Ruler Meade D. Detweiler.

N. C. Sherburne then told very eloquently how he liked it as far as he had gone.

Brief and interesting addresses on appropriate subjects were then made by Brothers Archie Davis, Jacob Hunter, Earl Murphy, Ogle and Vaughn.

A large number of Elks will attend the Grand Lodge session at Cincinnati next week, and by endorsement of the lodge will present the name of W. D. Fulton, of Newark Lodge, for district deputy. It is the feeling of the members of the lodge that Mr. Fulton, by his zeal and devotion to the interests of the order, deserves this recognition.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Claud Connell returned home yesterday after visiting the western states.

James J. Hill passed through the city on Wednesday on his way to his home at Johnstown.

Miss Mary Cramer returned home from Columbus last evening after a two weeks visit with friends.

Mrs. W. D. Fulton and little daughters, Martha and Frances, left yesterday for a few days stay at Lakeside.

J. H. Gillespie of Omaha, Neb., is visiting Mr. D. L. Hatch at his home near Appleton.

Miss Julia Green, who has been the guest of Miss J. V. H. Lumb of Newark, has returned home—Zanesville Times-Recorder.

Miss Bessie Richardson of Granville and Miss Elsie Rexroth of this city left Wednesday for St. Louis, where they will visit the fair.

Mrs. Frank Stevens of Waterloo, Ind., and Mrs. A. T. Stevens spent Saturday with Mrs. Bart Ewers at her home in Franklin township.

Mrs. G. W. Darling left last evening for a visit in Chicago. She will also visit her brother in Davenport, Iowa, and friends in Waukegan and Ottawa, Illinois.

Mrs. Jno. Bragg and children of the West End, left over the C. B. & N. railway this morning for "Camp Oakwood", where they will spend part of their vacation.

Mr. R. P. Bradley, representing the Ehrenfried Soap company of Tiffin, O., is in the city introducing White House soap. He will superintend the distribution of samples over the city which will enable nearly every resident to try this excellent soap. We believe it to be a fine article for both the toilet and laundry.

FRANCHISE

IS GRANTED B. G. DAWES AND HIS ASSOCIATES.

Company to Be Organized to Supply Newark With Natural Gas From Local Field—Terms of Franchise.

A franchise was granted Tuesday night by the city council, under which a company organized by B. G. Dawes, of Marietta, formerly of Newark, will by fall be ready to furnish natural gas to the citizens of Newark.

The pipes and mains of the Newark Gas Light and Coke company, as far as possible, will be used, and others put in so that the entire city can be served. Under the provisions of the franchise 2 per cent of the gross receipts will be paid to the city, and 25 cents per thousand is the maximum rate that can be charged consumers, and a 10 per cent discount must be given the consumer.

Another provision is that the meters used are to be furnished by the company without charge.

The company has several thousand acres of land in the Licking county gas fields under lease and is confident it will have an abundance of gas to furnish at reasonable terms.

Mr. Dawes is a former Newark man, having been in the gas business here and at Noblesville, Ind. The company, which is to have a capital of $250,000, will begin operations in the gas field at once and order material with the expectation of supplying Newark with natural gas the coming winter.

If the city prefers, it may accept free gas for the municipal electric light plant instead of taking the 2 per cent of the company's gross receipts.

All the little ones want a play suit Get them at EMERSON'S.

The nomination of Judge Parker has already given new heart and confidence to the Democrats of the nation, as well as to all lovers of good government. It was brought about in obedience to a popular demand, and it has, therefore, been received with great popular favor.

The nomination of Henry G. Davis for vice president on the Democratic ticket makes West Virginia a fairly debatable state. Mr. Davis himself says that the Democrats will carry it, and he is in the best position to know, having himself recently led his party to victory in the state. He evidently proposes to do his best to make good his words.

The Democratic standard-bearers will prove strong where the party can utilize strength to good advantage. Judge Parker's nomination gives the party a chance at New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Maryland, while the selection of Henry G. Davis will again bring West Virginia into line. These states added to the Solid South, together with Indiana and Wisconsin, will mean a Democratic victory with votes to spare.

Judge Parker owed his nomination to none of the reprehensible agencies so often invoked by candidates for high office. He had never even announced his candidacy for the great office to which he will be chosen by the votes of the people next November.

PARKER'S WISE ACTION

(Pittsburg Post.)

As fuller light is thrown upon the action of Judge Parker in sending the telegram to Mr. Sheehan confining the Democratic National convention of his views as to the gold standard the weaker become the objections raised in some quarters to it. It was objected that Judge Parker should have notified the convention of his position as soon as he knew that it had decided not to make any declaration in the platform upon the money question. Monday's New York Sun, while commending the telegram and at the same time criticizing Mr. Hill, discoursed editorially on this point as follows:

The chronology of events, when definitely established, will have much to do with the final judgment as to Judge Parker's knowledge of what was being said and done in his name at St. Louis. He would be relieved of much responsibility for the work of his representatives, for example, if it could be shown that he went to bed on Friday night equally ignorant of the imminence of the first ballot and of the fact that the subcommittee's monetary standard plank had been expelled from the draft of the platform, at Bryan's dictation and with Hill's consent. Every presumption based on Judge Parker's known character and habits of straightforward action, and as well as on his energetic action on Saturday after he understood the situation, is against the supposition that he was consciously willing to profit by the sinister operations of Hill.

It is now stated that Judge Parker did not know what action the convention had finally taken upon the financial question until he was notified on Saturday morning after his nomination. This was no doubt the case. It was not until late Friday evening that definite information was received in the newspaper offices that the platform as adopted by the convention contained no reference to the financial question, and that Judge Parker did not know this until the next morning is easily understandable. Then he at once went about setting himself right before the convention, and his tele-cision upon conditions as he finds them, not upon conditions as he would like to have them.

"After having stated that I shall support the ticket and after having given my reason for so doing, I think it due to the Democrats of the nation to say that while the fight on economic questions is postponed it is not abandoned. As soon as the election is over, I shall, with the help of those who believe as I do, undertake to organize for the campaign of 1908. The object being to marshal the friends of popular government, within the Democratic party, to the support of a radical and progressive policy to make the Democratic party an efficient means in the hands of the people for securing relief from the plutocratic element that controls the Republican party and for the time controls the Democratic party. This plan of organization will be elaborated soon."

COAL MINERS

Unable to See the President to Deliver a Message From 225,000 Pennsylvania Voters.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 13.—M. C. Burke, of Carbondale, and Henry Herscovitz of Plymouth, Pa., delegates to the mining convention now in session at Pittston, Penn., came here as a committee of the convention to present to President Roosevelt a set of resolutions requesting him to investigate the labor troubles in Colorado. Mr. Loeb, the President's private secretary, refused to present the men to the President. He told them that if there was anything to be handed to the President he would hand it.

The delegates became highly incensed and declined to execute at second hand the commission which the convention had entrusted to them to carry out in person. They boarded the next train to Pittston.

Before leaving Mr. Burke told your correspondent:

"We are not Anarchists or fanatics. We came to the President with a message from 225,000 voters of Pennsylvania, and all we asked was the privilege of delivering the message and carrying out our instructions. We had no argument to make and told Secretary Loeb that we would not take up two minutes of the President's time. I consider our treatment an affront to the labor unions which sent us. You will see what will be the result of this incident on Pennsylvania's vote."

STATUS

Of Democratic Committee Made Plain With Description of Coming Work of Campaign.

St. Louis, July 13.—National Democratic Committeeman Norman E. Mack, of New York, sent the following message to William F. Sheehan, at New York, making clear the exact status of the new national committee, and when it will hold its first regular meeting, in order to dispel all rumors that have arisen regarding the organization of the new committee:

"Senator James K. Jones will, under the instruction given him by the resolution passed by the convention Saturday night, call a meeting of the national committee as soon as he confers with Judge Alton B. Parker, the nominee of the party for president, and his friends, and learns from them the date fixed for notifying the nominees of their selection by the convention."

"He will then call a meeting of the national committee to be held in New York City, it being Judge Parker's wish to meet as many as possible of the national committeemen in attendance upon the meeting."

"It is for this purpose that Chairman Jones will first consult with Judge Parker in order to make the dates of the notification and the national committee meeting coincide, and thus afford the candidate an opportunity to meet the men who will lead his campaign in the various states."

"At this meeting the national committee will elect a chairman, secretary, treasurer and sergeant-at-arms. The committee will then take up such other matters as may properly come before it at that time. The national committee will, of course, consult Judge Parker and his friends before organizing."

"So many garbled reports have been sent out that I deem it necessary to make this statement as made to me by Chairman James K. Jones, who has been chairman of the national committee for eight years."

"NORMAN E. MACK."

"I owe my whole life to Burdock Blood Bitters. Scrofulous sores covered my body. I seemed beyond cure. B. B. has made me a perfectly well woman." Mrs. Charles Hallon, Ber-ville, Mich.

adopted in favor of arbitration, the eight-hour day and against government by injunction; also a plank on the Colorado situation.

"If Judge Parker is silent or ambiguous on these subjects, it will mean that the financial influences back of him will not permit him to take the labor side on these disputed questions."

"On the tariff question some little progress may be hoped for, but the Parker men on the committee were necessarily in favor of a very conservative tariff plank, and it remains to be seen whether Judge Parker will carry out the positive and definite plank which was submitted by the national committee. This is the situation."

"Judge Parker stands for enough things that are good to justify me in giving him my vote, but, as I have tried to point for several months, the triumph of the Wall street element of the party denies to the country any hope of relief on economic questions."

"I have nothing to take back; I have nothing to withdraw of the things that I have said against the methods pursued to advance his candidacy. It was a plain and deliberate attempt to deceive the party. The New York platform was valueless and meaningless and purposely so because the advocates of Judge Parker were trying to secure votes from among the people who would have opposed his views had they known them."

"If he had sent to the Albany convention the telegram that he sent to the St. Louis convention, he would have had very few instructed delegates from the South, and no possible chance for the nomination."

"But he and his managers adroitly and purposely concealed his position until the delegates had been corrupted and the nomination assured. Then his friends attempted to secure a gold plank, which was overwhelmingly defeated in the committee."

"After the party had rejoiced over the harmony secured by the omission of the question, and after he had secured the nomination, he injected his views upon the subject at a time when he could not be taken from the ticket without great demoralization."

"The nomination was secured, therefore, by crooked and indefensible methods, but the Democrat who loves his country has to make his de-

CITY COUNCIL

GRANTS A FRANCHISE TO NEWARK GAS COMPANY.

Water Works Communication Filed—Mayor Reports Fines—Extension of Street Car Lines.

The City council met Monday night in adjourned session with President Rosell in the chair. Members present were Baker, Carille, Conrad, Jones, Miller, Moser and Hunter.

The minutes of the previous meetings were read and approved.

The communication from the Newark Water Company relative to the purchase of the old plant by the city was taken up as the special order for the evening. On motion the communication was filed.

The street committee recommended the passage of the ordinance extending the franchise of the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark traction line, and Newark and Granville street railroad. Filed.

The Mayor reported having collected $278 in fines and licenses during June.

The Board of Public Service submitted a report recommending that the council pass an ordinance to sell bonds for sewer on Oakwood avenue. That the council take action to restrain the B. & O. and Pan-Handle railroad from raising the tracks over the streets between First and Williams streets; to take action to relieve the property holders on South Fourth and Pataskala streets from being flooded with water from the South Fourth street sewer; that the first alley west of Union street running from Hancock to Union streets be vacated, and revert back to owners of property abutting on said alley. The parts relating to South Fourth street sewer and railroad crossings was referred to the street committee and the rest received and filed.

The city officials were invited to attend the Woodmen picnic at Buckeye Lake on Thursday, July 21, and meet with the membership and supreme officers of the order. On motion of Member Jones the invitation was accepted.

Property owners on West Main and Pine street presented a request asking that action on the franchise of the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark traction company be delayed until they can present their claims. Received and filed.

ORDINANCES.
On third reading, to regulate the sale of milk in Newark. Passed.

On second reading: To accept the plat of G. L. Larkin and Lucinda Roland.

By Jones—On second reading: To extend the franchise of the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction company.

By Baker—On first reading: To extend the route and franchise of the Columbus, Newark and Zanesville Electric Railway company in Newark as follows: Beginning on North street where the tracks at present now stop; thence east on North street to Maple avenue; thence north on Maple avenue to the corporation line of the city. On motion the rules were suspended and the ordinance was passed.

The following budget for the appropriation of money for the expenses of the six months ending December 31, 1904, was presented by Mayor Crilly:

COURT

ADJOURNS UNTIL SIXTEENTH DAY OF AUGUST.

Injunction Against Interurban Made Perpetual—Cook, Pataskala, Case—Mrs. Stephenson Granted Divorce.

In Common Pleas court the following business was transacted Wednesday:

S. D. McArthur vs. Columbus, Newark and Zanesville Railroad company; a petition for an injunction to restrain defendant from constructing and operating its road across premises of plaintiff, east of the city, no agreement with the defendant having been made and no condemnation proceedings instituted. Upon the filing of the petition, the Court granted a temporary injunction. The Court Wednesday made the injunction perpetual. Since the issuing of the preliminary order of injunction, the company has been running its cars; defendant claimed under an agreement with plaintiff. For violating the injunction, the Court amerced the defendant in the sum of $50. Notice of appeal was given by defendant, the Court suspending the order of permanent injunction for ten days to enable defendant to get the case to the Circuit court. Stasel; Fitzgibbon.

George Cook, plaintiff in error vs. Village of Pataskala, defendant in error. Cook was prosecuted before Eugene Moore, Mayor of Pataskala, for unlawfully keeping a place where intoxicating liquors were sold, in violation of an ordinance of the village. The prosecution resulted in Cook being convicted. Cook asks the Common Pleas court for leave to file his petition in error to reverse the judgment of conviction on the ground of certain errors occurring at his trial, the chief one urged being that he demanded a jury. The Supreme court has held that a defendant, in such a case, was not entitled to a trial by jury as a matter of right, it being a case where the penalty is a fine and imprisonment, simply as a means of enforcing the payment of the fine. The Common Pleas court finds no error in the proceedings before the Mayor, and overrules the motion for leave to file the petition in error. Smythe for the motion; Stasel, contra.

Jane Stephenson vs. Milton Stephenson, decree of divorce granted plaintiff. Hilliard.

Michael Butt vs. City of Newark plaintiff asks the reversal of a judgment of conviction for traveling from place to place in the city selling and soliciting orders for merchandise without having obtained a license so to do, contrary to an ordinance of this city. Kibler & Kibler; Smythe. Submitted.

Court adjourned to August 16 when confirmation of sales will be entered, but no other business will be transacted, an adjournment being taken on that date sine die.

Case Argued Friday.

The case of Albert R. Bader vs. The Newark and Granville Street Car company for $300 damages will be argued in Squire King's court Friday morning.

Suit for Damages.

Jacob Scholt, of Zanesville, for his minor daughter, Edna Scholt, has, by his attorneys, E. E. Parver and Smythe & Smythe, commenced suit in the common pleas court against the Newark and Granville Street Railway company for $10,000 damages. The plaintiff alleges that she entered a car at the Permanent Camp grounds; that the trolley wire broke, a part striking her on the shoulder and arm; that her clothing was burned and that she was greatly shocked.

THE NEWARK BOYS WIN FROM URBANA.

Blue Sox Lost by Score of Five to Two, Being Outplayed by the Idlewilders.

Urbana, O., July 13.—The Idlewilders made it two straight from Urbana Tuesday by winning from the Blue Sox with the score of 5 to 2.

The pitchers, Willis and "Lefty" Snyder, were about equal in the box, although the former save two more hits than Snyder.

Urbana was to the bad again and were outplayed by the Idlewilders.

The only feature of the game was Bannon's catch in the ninth. A Texas leaguer was knocked out, and running in the same direction as the ball was traveling, the little shortstop made a dandy capture.

Doyle's throwing was the best ever seen in Urbana.

Ben Davis, the fast center fielder of the Columbus Unions, joined Idlewild here today and his playing was first class.

The visitors play in Piqua Wednesday and Thursday. The score:—

PRICE OF MEAT

WILL NOT BE INCREASED BY NEWARK DEALERS.

The Great Strike Which May Cause a Famine Elsewhere Will Have Opposite Effect Here.

A representative of The Advocate interviewed a number of the leading retail merchants Wednesday and asked them what effect in their judgment the big strike of meat packers now on in nine of the principal cities of the country would have in the local meat business and the prices of meats here.

The general opinion of the retail dealers who were interviewed seems to be that if the strike has any effect on the local situation it will be to benefit the consumers of meat in Newark and vicinity, for the reason that cattle are reported as being very plentiful in Licking county and vicinity, and the strike, if continued, will prevent the shipment of cattle to the big stock markets of the country, thereby overstocking the market here and will consequently bring the prices down.

Metz Brothers said that while the shippers would be unable to sell their stock in the stock yards, they would be compelled to sell it to the local market, and that in their opinion the price of meat would not be increased, and that the local dealers and consumers would reap the advantage.

Thomas Dupler said he cannot see that the strike will have any effect on the local market. He does not think there will be any increase in the price of meat unless the strike should continue for a long time, although there may be a slight increase in the price of hams, bacon, etc.

C. W. Miller said: "There has been no increase in the price of meat. There are plenty of cattle in the country to supply all the people at reasonable prices, and the consumers and local markets will be benefited by the strike."

Tolstoi on the War.

Count Leo Tolstoi's ten column article, "Peace and War," published in the London Times, for the moment diverted the attention of the Russian press from the war itself, and the echoes of the anathemas editorially launched at the head of the aged philosopher have not yet died away. Even Tolstoi's friends are deprecating his boldness in lifting up his single voice against a war to which 130,000,000 of his countrymen are manfully committed. "The voice of a once great intellect debauched by senility," the Novoe Vremya calls it, and yet the analytic skill, the perfect command of material, the subtlety, the realistic grasp upon the elusive phenomena of national passion, and, above all, the magnificent idealism of this great writer, have never been more wonderfully displayed. As a mere literary production it is impressive. In "Peace and War" Tolstoi gives us an unrivaled account of the psychology of an army in battle. He lays bare the complex motives, the brutalities and the mistaken aspirations which drive a people into the horrors of the field of battle. The whole is so remarkable as to have drawn from such a brother in letters as Thomas Hardy this glowing tribute:

"Making all allowance for extravagance of detail and occasional incoherence, surely all objectors should be hushed by his great argument and every defect in his particular reasonings be hidden by the blaze of glory which shines from his masterly indictment of war as a modern principle, with all its illogical and senseless crimes."

Yet in his daring Tolstoi is perfectly safe. No Russian official would dare lift a hand against him. His moral elevation is so great that it is a possession of the whole world. His sincerity and his willingness to suffer for the truth defend him from all assault. He would go without a murmur to the convict camp of Siberia rather than be silent when he felt called upon to speak. He has the serene courage to face unreasoning unpopularity as a soldier would storm an intrenchment. He knew well what he was doing when he spoke of the czar, at a time when that monarch was the object of the frantic adoration of all Russia, as the "unfortunate and entangled young man," and again as "Nicholas Romanoff," with Alexei Kuropatkin, decided to kill thousands of deluded Russian peasants in support of those stupidities, robberies and every kind of abomination accomplished in China and Korea by immoral, ambitious men now sitting peacefully in their palaces.

The diplomatists who by their blundering and lying policies brought on the war are the special targets of Tolstoi's winged shafts. The journalists who at first deceived the people, then excited them to fury and urged them on to death, while they themselves stayed securely at home coining money out of the blood of their fellows, he denounces in unmeasured terms. He chastises the great nobles and the concessionaires in the far east with a scourge of scorpions. He holds up to scorn the soldier who "seeks the bubble reputation at the cannon's mouth," glutting his savage instincts and hoping all the while for the death of his superior that he may win promotion.

In his depictions of the onset of the war mania, however, the great realist's pen is sharpest. He sweeps away all the pretenses of the war party. In a moment of madness, he says, all that raises us above the beasts is thrown away. The whole work of civilization, the progress of science, the teachings of religion, are forgotten. He forces home with terrible truth the futility of armed conflict, its tendency to national suicide and ultimate anarchy.

To the arguments of those who see in the growth of armaments and the increasing deadliness of implements of war a prophecy of universal peace he replies with marked irony. Yet his own remedy, in the light of the practical, seems little better. His remedy lies in idealism. Let men reflect on the meaning of life, on the love of God and on the brotherhood of man; then they will go to war no more. Though that doctrine has been taught for nineteen centuries by the disciples of the Son of God, the world is not yet ready to accept it. But, however far from the millennium we may be, we cannot question the justice and the awful veracity of Tolstoi's arraignment. His word picture of war as it is should be preserved with the canvases of Vereschagin, the great soul who, by depicting with terrible realism the battlefields of Russia's past, sought to avert such another cataclysm as that in which he lost his life.

If the newspapers would let Dowie alone it would be a decided relief to the public and would cause the bottom to fall out of "Prophet Elijah III's" business in a very short time. The only way to deal with some people is to ignore them.

Perhaps the reason for the recent Haitian revolution was that Haiti thought Santo Domingo had been monopolizing the footlights long enough.

NEW SHORT STORIES

He Was Not Discharged.

Captain Eugene H. C. Lentz, U. S. N., commander of the battleship Maine, has German blood in his veins and vast knowledge of detail about naval ordnance in his head. Before he was given the Maine and last went to sea he was superintendent of the gun factory at the Washington navy yard and gained the reputation of being a strict taskmaster.

Habitually an "early to bed, early to rise" man, Captain Lentz found himself unable to sleep one night. He arose, dressed, left his quarters and walked down to one of the gun shops. Although three shifts are needed to dispose of the great press of work now on hand, there was little doing.

Captain Lentz's sharp eye detected a mechanic sitting on the carriage of a great lathe which was slowly running to and fro taking almost infinitesimal threads of steel from a twelve inch gun. He was dozing, oblivious to all surroundings, when Captain Lentz reached his side and aroused him with: "Well, what are you doing and what's your name?"

The craftsman looked up and quailed. Then, with a resigned air, he replied, "Well, I guess it's Dennis."

He was not discharged.

Punishing the Trusts.

Champ Clark of Missouri tells of a hot political campaign in that state in which one of the principal figures was a candidate for the legislature, a man named Jenkins, whose intense bitterness against the trusts occasioned considerable surprise, for the reason that it was well known he had some years previously been connected with various enterprises supposed to have been dominated by the monopolists.

After the conclusion of one of Mr. Jenkins' speeches, in which he had rhetorically flayed the trusts and all in their line, an acquaintance of the candidate said to him:

"Well, old man, you're certainly bitter enough now on the question of trusts, but a great many of us remember when you yourself were connected with one of them."

The candidate smiled genially. "That's very true, my friend," said he. "I was. But, as I told an audience last week when the same rebuke was made to me, when I once realized the enormity of the thing I did my best to crush that trust. To that trust, my friend, I sold every one of my factories, every one of them, and for twice what they were worth, sir, and for cash!"—New York Herald.

Horses A-Plenty.

One time when the late Clarence King was in the west and near a then very important mine he received from one of the owners a telegram asking him to visit the mine immediately and wire the results of his examination, especially with regard to an alarming rumor that the value of the vein had been much impaired by finding in it a very large "horse" which is a miner's term for a body of worthless rock that sometimes displaces the ore and makes a rich vein poor. When King had come out of the mine after inspection, he found another telegram waiting for him from his impatient friend asking, "Is it true that there is a 'horse' in the mine?" To which he promptly replied, "The mine is a perfect livery stable."

Won Despite Himself.

Rufus W. Peckham, judge of the supreme court, tells the story of a young lawyer who was trying his first case.

"Evidently," he said, "he had studied it until he knew it by heart. He began speaking. When he had arrived about halfway we decided the case in his favor and told him so. But he had got going and found it impossible to stop. On and on he went, like an automobile past control.

"At length one of the judges, leaning forward, said snarlingly:

"Mr. M., in spite of your arguments we have concluded to decide this case in your favor."

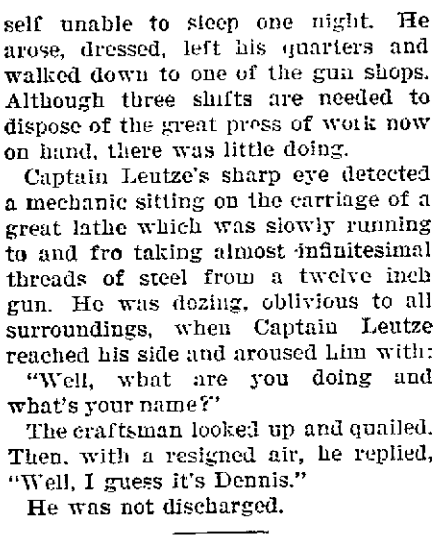

Indicated by Eggs.

Nat Goodwin told a little one the other night which was new to his hearers and appreciated by some who had encountered hard luck and many miseries in their barnstorming days.

"I dropped in on a grocer in a small town out west," said Goodwin, "and in the course of a chat I asked him:

"Are there any amusements in town tonight?"

"Shouldn't wonder," he replied. "I've been selling 'nawful lot of old eggs today."

"MY NAME IS DENNIS."

Sacrifice.

All that is worth having in this world comes through sacrifice. Liberty has been bought by the blood of countless heroes. Religion has been advanced by the death of numberless martyrs. Reformers, philosophers, inventors, discoverers, have been ridiculed, ostracized, persecuted and murdered.

The highway of progress is lined with the graves of lovers and saviors of mankind—men who thought more of others than of their own personal welfare.

A man is never really great until he is greater than himself—until he can be himself in a cause or an idea.

We have reached our present advancement in the world through the sacrifice of those who have gone before us.

We are the heirs of the labors, sufferings, struggles and lives of all that have delved, taught and striven since the world began. Every child that is born that is guided and reared to manhood or womanhood represents the sacrifice of its parents. They in turn represent the sacrifice of their parents, and so the chain runs on until it is seen that each of us stands on a bridge of sacrifice which extends backward through the ages.

For this is the divine law: We lay down our lives for those that come after us.

The martyrdom of man! Who can measure it? It is the soil out of which has grown all that is good in the world—truth, right, virtue, freedom, religion, brotherhood and enlightenment. We lightly prize our blessings, for we little know how much they cost in treasure and tears and blood.

Empires have risen and fallen, dynasties have passed away, and the world's scepter of power has passed from capital to capital toward the west, but through it all the soldiers of the Prince of Peace have marched on from triumph to triumph.

But do we ever think how much was paid for these victories?

The leader of this crusade was crucified. His early disciples were imprisoned and mobbed. His followers were fed to wild beasts and burned for heretics. Later those who would follow him in spirit were persecuted and burned as heretics. Through all the ages his true lovers and upholders have been sneered at, neglected, scorned, left in poverty, tortured and in many cases killed.

From Jesus of Nazareth unto now the path of those who have really advanced his kingdom has been the thorny one of sacrifice.

Selfishness is the mother of all sin. Renunciation of self is the road to heaven.

Live for others; live for a cause, for a great truth, for humanity, for God, for helpfulness, for the good you can do.

Live for something or somebody outside of your own petty pleasure and aggrandizement.

Be ready to lay down your hopes of wealth, your ambition, even your life itself, if you may advance the kingdom, if you may make men happier and better.

For all that you give up for the sake of others, some time, somewhere, shall be returned to you a hundredfold.

All the ages have sacrificed for you. "Freely ye have received, freely give." He that crucifies his lower self and its desires shall find the higher self which is immortal.

The Haitian incident, which seemed at one time likely to embroil the black republic in a war with France and Germany, is explained now as the mistake of a sentry in throwing a stone at the foreign ambassadors as a challenge instead of demanding the password. The threatened visit of a fleet of warships has taught the Haitians the truth of the proverb about persons who live in glass houses, and stones have been eliminated from the equipment of the Haitian army.

The death of George Watts, the foremost of English painters in the last quarter of the nineteenth century, means more than the loss of a painter. It means the loss of a force. He was an idealist in a commercial age, and against the meaningless phrase, "Art for art's sake," he opposed a beautiful theory of the social value of art. In his canvases he interpreted life as the poet interprets it in his poems. He was a philosopher as well as an artist.

Tramps recently stole a number of books from a Methodist Sunday school library in Pennsylvania. Just what a trampa would want with a Sunday school book is not apparent. Perhaps he wanted to read of the kingdom of rest.

A New York man got $200 in a breach of promise suit. This would indicate that the jury knew just about what the affections of a New York man are worth.

The indications are, it is said, that this year's puna crop will bring the lowest prices on record. This is cheerful news for the star boarder.

ber and November, 1904, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company will sell Home-seekers' excursion tickets at greatly reduced rates to points in the South and Southeast, West and Northwest.

Low Rate Excursion to Atlantic City, N. J., and Other Seaside Resorts.—In order to give its patrons an opportunity to visit the seashore at a nominal cost, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company will sell low-rate excursion tickets to Atlantic City, Ocean City, Cape May and Sea Isle City, N. J., and Ocean City, Md., on Thursday, August 18, 1904.

Atlantic City, N. J., the most popular of the hundred or more resorts along the Atlantic Coast, is pronounced the finest watering place in the world. This great American Seashore Resort has kept pace with the times and prospered. The hotels have grown in number and size. Prosperity and popularity are with it.

The surf bathing which has made Atlantic City famous is one of the wonders of the world. The sight during bathing hours defies description; men, women and children in bathing costumes of varied hues form a picture to be seen only at Atlantic City.

Aside from the seaside features, Atlantic City has amusements of every kind. Great iron piers extend hundreds of feet into the ocean. Each pier has its summer theater and band stands, and for a nominal price one can enjoy the comfortable chairs of the pier and listen to the music of the bands throughout the entire day, if he so will it.

The proximity of Atlantic City to all the big central and western cities, by reason of the excellent through train service of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, makes it the resort of the masses. Tickets will be available on all regular trains, and will be good for return twelve days, including date of sale, thus giving ample time for an enjoyable outing. Stop-over within limit of ticket will be allowed at Philadelphia, Pa., and Washington, D. C., on return trip.

SUMMER TOURIST RATES to Pueblo, Colorado Springs, Denver, Salt Lake City and Ogden, via the Missouri Pacific Railway (the Colorado Short Line). Tickets on sale June 1st to September 31st. Final return limit October 31st. Liberal stop-overs allowed. Double Daily Service from St. Louis to Colorado and Utah. Pullman Drawing-Room Sleepers, Dining Cars and Free Reclining Chair Cars. Unexcelled service and quick time. For further information, address A. A. Gallagher, D. P. A., No. 419 Walnut street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mrs. Keller Has Experience With a Runaway Horse, But Is Not Injured—Budget of Personals.

Granville, O., July 12.—Mrs. Keller, who resides on the Alexandria road, between this place and Alexandria, had quite an experience here with a runaway horse on Monday evening. Mrs. Keller had been visiting friends in the extreme eastern part of the village and had started to drive home in the evening. She had driven but a short distance when she got out of the buggy to rein up the horse. She had hardly stepped out of the buggy when the horse started to run. Mrs. Keller was unable to stop the horse and he ran swiftly up Broadway until he reached the corner of Pearl street, when the buggy turned over. The horse immediately stopped and no damage resulted beyond the breaking of the buggy seat, and Mrs. Keller continued on her way home as though nothing had happened.

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS.

The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy Now Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man whose hair is not dead at the roots, need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the root; and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long, and in six weeks he had a normal suit of hair. FOR MURDER

Clarence Sterrett Arrested by Chief Sheridan Wednesday.

Affidavit is Filed by F. E. Roe Who is a Neighbor of Sterrett.

The Woman Died Tuesday Evening and Coroner Legge Began an Investigation—Sterrett Testified—Alleged That He Had Abused His Wife.

At 3:15 p. m. C. W. Sterrett, arrested on a warrant sworn out by F. A. Roe, a neighbor, charging wife murder, was in Mayor Crilly's office waiting for the arrival of the lawyers, when a time will be set for the preliminary hearing. F. B. Smythe will represent the prosecution and B. G. Smythe the defendant. Sterrett is in the custody of Chief Sheridan.

C. W. Sterrett's hearing was set for Monday at 9 a. m.

Mrs. Clarence W. Sterrett, who lived about six miles north of Newark, on the old Archer farm, died at her home Tuesday evening about 5:30 under circumstances that caused suspicion that her death was caused by violence.

Mrs. Sterrett was a daughter of Wm. Barcus of Fallsbury township and at instance of the brothers and sisters of the dead woman, Coroner C. F. Legge decided upon an investigation. For the purpose of viewing the remains and conducting a post-mortem the coroner with Dr. S. G. McClure, and Dr. E. F. Barnes, was driven to the Sterrett home by Mr. James Mills in his automobile.

The physicians proceeded with the autopsy which developed that all the organs of the body were normal except the liver and one kidney. The former organ was involved by a hydatidic cirrhosis, which was evidently the cause of her death. There were several blood clots on the kidney which may have been caused by an injury, but of this there was no external evidence. The cirrhosis of the liver was also a condition that in the opinion of the physicians may have been caused by violence.

Every witness who was examined by Coroner Legge, including Sterrett's sons, testified that Sterrett was very violent when drunk, and that on these occasions he would strike and choke his wife, and threaten to kill her and the whole family. The only way to keep him from carrying out his threats was to physically overpower him. He has been on a protracted spree and his actions this time, have been as usual on such occasions.

Sterrett was before the Coroner Wednesday morning and in his testimony acknowledged that he had at times had some family trouble.

Mr. Sterrett testified as follows: "I live in Newton township; am a plasterer, and lived on a farm with my wife and six children. The oldest one of the children was 18 years old on the 3d of May, and the youngest child is past five. My wife has been in tolerably good health, and I noticed nothing wrong about her health. We have had a little family trouble, but nothing recently. I drink some and this is when we would have the most trouble. My wife was taken sick on Monday night. She got flighty and seemed to get right up in the bed about midnight. I did not notice her being restless before in particular. I never abused her. I took her by the neck one night and shook her a little, but not to choke her; never inflicted any wounds on her at all. I was drinking at the time; it was never my intention to hurt her any, for I loved her. Things will come up in family trouble and sometimes my temper would get the best of me, we got along fine; her name was Barcus before we were married. I had no trouble with her people or my neighbors; the neighbors all used me all right; she had been taking treatment from Dr. Rouse. I sent my son for Dr. Rouse but could not get him; she thought it wasn't bad and that she would get over it in a little while. She did not want a doctor at all; I thought of getting Dr. McClure, and he came about 4 or 5 o'clock in the evening; she was unconscious; she was flighty and sort of sleepy; she had no habits such as opium, etc., that I knew of; she never complained of her liver, but sometimes complained of her heart stopping beating."

To an Advocate reporter however, Sterrett said that he had never struck his wife, but had had some trouble with her on two occasions, the last being about six months ago.

As to the circumstances attending his wife's death and its cause Sterrett said she awakened up Monday night suffering considerably, and appeared to be "flighty." He worked with her attempting to give relief, but she grew worse, and he carried her from the upstairs bed room to one on the lower floor. Here she remained until the time of her death, unconscious most of the time. Neighbors ministered to her and did all in their power to render needed assistance. One of the neighbors said Wednesday morning that Sterrett was ordered away from his wife's bedside by him, as he (Sterrett) was at that time drunk, not long before the unfortunate woman's death.

F. E. Roe, a neighbor, who seems to be one who knows more about the case than anyone else, came to town and testified before the coroner. He was bitter in his arraignment of Sterrett, whom he boldly charged with being responsible for his wife's death.

About 10 o'clock he went before Mayor Crilly and swore to an affidavit which charges that "one C. W. Sterrett did unlawfully, purposely and of deliberate and premeditated malice kill and murder one Minerva Sterrett by means not at this time known to deponent."

It will be seen that affidavit charges first degree murder, and a warrant was issued for Sterrett's arrest on this charge and placed in the hands of Chief of Police Sheridan for service. The officer was informed that Sterrett was in town, and an Advocate reporter started out to find him, leaving the chief to go on the east side of the square and await developments. Sterrett was unknown to the chief while the reporter had talked with him earlier in the day. The newspaper man came upon Sterrett talking to two men on the Larus & Alzheimer corner, Third and Church streets, and engaged him in conversation concerning the case, finally suggesting that Sterrett accompany him to the Advocate office, where the account of his wife's death written earlier would be read to him. To this Sterrett readily agreed, and the reporter arranged to send word to Chief Sheridan that the man he wanted was found.

The two men and Sterrett's half-grown son started around to the Advocate office a casual conversation taking place between them.

Chief Sheridan hastened through the park and came up to Sterrett in front of Kussma's stand on the West Side. He placed his hand on Sterrett's shoulder with the remark: "I want you."

"On do? what for?" asked the prisoner.

"I have a paper here, do you want to hear it read?" replied Sheridan, at the same time producing and reading the warrant, to which Sterrett calmly listened, displaying very little emotion, but that he was inwardly perturbed could be plainly seen. He turned with the officer and started away remarking: "That's a terrible charge to put against a man."

The chief agreed to accompany the prisoner to the undertaker who will have charge of Mrs. Sterrett's funeral, and here final arrangements for the burial as far as the suspected husband is concerned were made.

He was taken to the county jail where he was searched, nothing whatever of any importance being found on his person by Jailor Holly Jamison.

While walking to the jail he remarked: "the idea of charging such a crime to me. All the neighbors know I thought too much of my wife to have killed her." Tears came into the man's eyes as he said this, and flowed down his cheeks as he added:

"I would certainly like to attend the funeral. Do you think that can be arranged? Can't I give bail and go out there tomorrow?"

He was informed that the offense was not bailable and that it will be impossible for him to attend the funeral.

In speaking of Mr. Roe, who filed the affidavit charging murder, Sterrett said that he was prompted by malice, which accounted for his action. They once had some trouble about a cat and since then Sterrett says he did not wish to have anything to do with Roe.

Sterrett is emphatic in declaring that he never misused his wife, but in this he is contradicted by every one who has talked about the affair, and his reputation among those neighbors who were in Newark Wednesday is very unsavory in regard to his treatment of the dead woman.

There is an intense and bitter feeling toward him in the community where he lives on this account. This feeling is shared in an intensified form by the brothers of Mrs. Sterrett, the Barcus boys. C. L. Barcus, one of these brothers, told the Advocate man that for the past few years Sterrett's treatment of his wife has been brutal and cruel, and that he undoubtedly caused her death by his continuous abuse.

"He is now just where he should be, in jail charged with my sister's murder," concluded Mr. Barcus.

Sterrett after being searched was placed in a cell on the second floor, facing south, the cell being the same one that has been occupied by Orrin Nichols who shot Ed Stine, and until recently by Dennis Good, now serving a term in the penitentiary for shooting Officer Callan.

As he entered the cell corridor he remarked as he walked down its length, "This is a new experience for me." He was then locked in a cell and lapsed into silence. He is not early, or moody but talks freely about the case, appearing to be more grieved over his wife's death than startled by the seriousness of the charge.

The prisoner is 42 years of age and is a son of Robert Sterrett, who lives in Washington township, a few miles from the scene of the alleged crime.

According to his statement he has never been arrested since boyhood, and was never in any serious trouble.

He is a medium sized man, with a dark synotic complexion, and a physical defect in the left eye. He walks with a stoop and would weigh probably 150 pounds. He speaks in low measured tones, has no braggadocio about his demeanor, and really appears to be the last man on earth that one would pick out as a wife murderer.
